

Area Developer Honored With HBA Award

Rex Vick, Jr. Named 2008 Rookie of the Year

Chapel Hill, NC – The Home Builders Association of Durham, Orange and Chatham Counties has named Rex Vick, Jr. their 2008 Rookie of the Year. Vick, Jr., CEO of Windjam Development Group, is the ninth recipient of the prestigious award.

To be eligible for award consideration, nominees must have been HBA members for less than 18 months and significantly contributed to the success of the HBA in accomplishing its mission to serve members in three counties. Rex Vick, Jr. was selected from more than 100 eligible members.

“We are excited to honor Rex with this award,” said Nick Tennyson, Executive Vice President of the HBA of Durham, Orange and Chatham Counties. “He deserves this recognition because his actions have greatly impacted our organization.”

“When we need the backing of a member to make a project happen, too often it feels like we round up the usual suspects,” said Tennyson. “In 2008 that wasn’t the case. Rex stepped up and put his company at the forefront of the HBA. Because of his actions, all of our members benefited.”

As CEO of Windjam Development Group, Rex Vick, Jr. continues to guide the firm with a steady hand. The company focuses on high growth markets and prefers to develop projects near nationally ranked resorts and destinations. Windjam's high level of integrity and dedication has made the company one of the most respected leaders among North Carolina developers.

Windjam is also currently partnering with local builders to craft a custom home to benefit North Carolina Children’s Hospital. “Tomorrow’s Hope” is located within The Hamptons, Windjam’s newest luxury community near Chapel Hill.
